Features

44 C. Greg Rössel, then See the World
In the tiny inland town of Troy, there's a boatbuilder who is also a teacher, and a writer, and a radio programmer, and a community activist. He is also a man who has helped keep the real in reality.
BY DANA WILDE

50 Antique Maps for the Twenty-First Century
Using cutting-edge technology, Historic MapWorks makes maps and charts from the earliest years of our country available to anyone with web access.
BY JANET MENDELSON

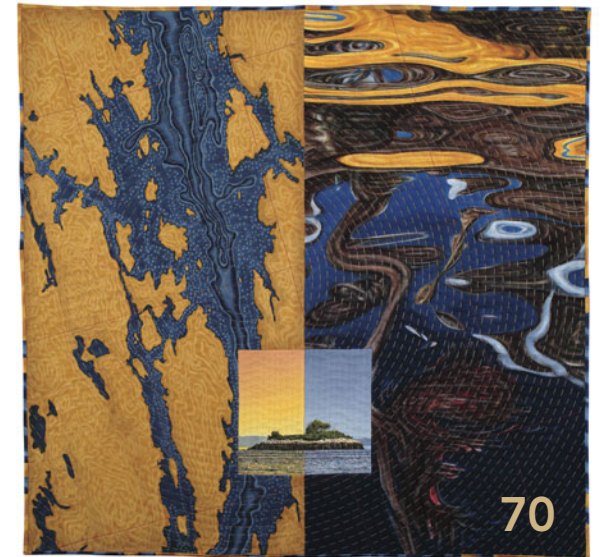

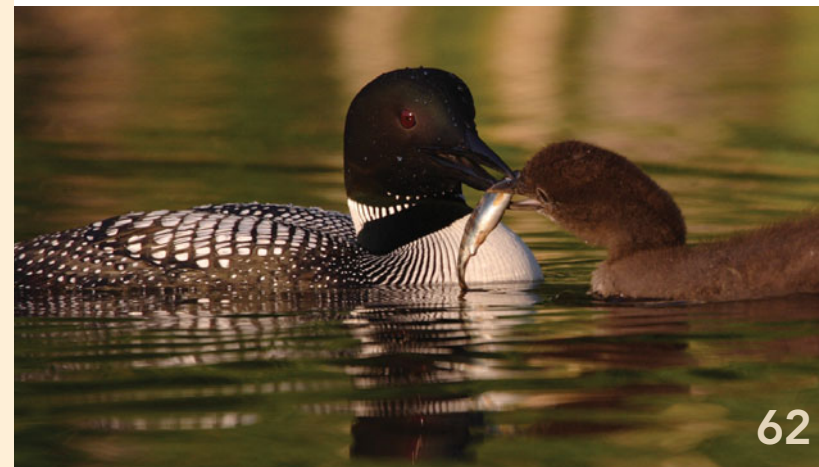

56 The Sailboat Race As Obstacle Course
The Mill River Race, run annually since 1910 in Penobscot Bay's Fox Islands, is a premiere event for North Haven Dinghies.
BY POLLY SALTONSTALL | PHOTOGRAPHS BY ALISON LANGLEY

62 The Loons are Truly Talking
Yes, the call of the loon is a form of conversation; biologists have been listening to find out what it is these birds have to say.
BY RUTH ANN HILL | PHOTOS BY DAN POLESCHOOK & GINGER GUMM

70 Fraas & Slade's Art of the Quilt
Based in Edgecomb, Gayle Fraas and Duncan Slade turn pattern and landscape—and fabric and paint—into one-of-a-kind artwork.
BY CARL LITTLE

76 Legends & Lies
Take any stories you hear from an old salt and regard them... well... with a pinch of salt.
TEXT AND ILLUSTRATIONS BY JAN ADKINS

82 Law & Order Comes to the Flats
